'Tony" Hamilton to Join animal was seen at the show for all

In breed, Senn-Senn is a Japanese toy quantel. His dam and sire were both manber of race horses abroad, Hamilton was secured for the Baron through the influence of Pierre Lorillard, who recommended him as being a first-class rider. Hamilton can ride as ow as 194 pounds. He will have to ride his best if he expects to make a name for himself in Austria, for he will be pitted against the crack American riders Sann Doggett, Fred Taral. Willie Simms and Paisey McDermott, who are also engaged to ride in Austria the coming season.

Senn-Senn's Noble Ancestry.

Senn-Senn's breed is a noble one. It has been for centuries the pride of the mabobs of China and Japin, where it was known as the "sleeve" dog. The mane was derived from the manner in the owners caried them about the streets. For a score of years in Engance of the principle of the pride in Austria the coming season.

Two thousand dollars seems an exertistic to even offer for four pounds of dog, but nevertheless that is just the figure some folks would willingly give for the mite of caninity that has been on exhibition at Madison Square Garden for the past four days. His name is Senn-Senn. No cuter animal was seen at the show for all dogs. None could be adjudged his animal was seen at the show for all dogs. None could be adjudged his superior in quality as a dog. Five out of eight experts on dogs said he was the finest there was and accordingly crowned the little fellow king of all dogs. He was perfect to build and in fact in every qualification. So clear are his bright eves that they were what first attracted the attention of the Judges. Then his coat was heavy and nretty, and his general appearance so far in additional conjunction that the verdict of champion was easily Senn-Senn's property.
